

DEVELOP YOUR ENGLISH WITH THE SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST

Pick up Hong Kong's best-selling English language newspaper at WSI FREE!

1 June 2006 – Wall Street Institute has arranged to have 300 complimentary copies of the Saturday and Sunday editions of the South China Morning Post delivered to our centres each week during June.

The ability to speak good English, the international language of business, is a powerful tool to have at your disposal at this stage of Hong Kong's development. And now you will be able to develop your English reading and comprehension skills by reading complimentary copies of Saturday's South China Morning Post and the Sunday Morning Post each week at your regular WSI centre.

The South China Morning Post is Hong Kong's leading English-language newspaper, offering the best source of world, regional and local news and analysis together with the most authoritative China reports. It also offers unrivalled coverage of the world of sport and entertainment.

Saturday's South China Morning Post includes Business, City and Education supplements while the Sunday Morning Post comes with the Post Magazine, The Review, Your Money and Sunday Sport, giving you plenty of reading material to last you through the week.

Copies will be available on a first come, first served basis at all centres from 3 June 2006.

For enquiries, please contact our hotline at 2575 6888.

– END –